America was destroyed, wiped out by the second civil war. In this post-apocalyptic world, survivors are far and away between them. And most of the survivors are members of the violent gangs, predators who live in big cities. They patrol the countryside looking for slaves for new victims to return to the city for their favorite deadly sport: Arena 1. The stadium of death, where opponents are made to fight to the death, in the most barbaric ways. There is only one rule in the arena: no one survives. Ever. Great. Great in its foremanity. That's how I'd describe book four of the Arena series. Everybody says so. But most of all, I say it. My best friend, Mark Hawak, who I chose, presents planet Earth in interstellar gladiator competitions, has kicked and taken names as I knew it would. Everyone I choose wins. And they earn a lot. But this book is amazing. Intense action with yours really saved the day and tell these aliens how much they suck? You're hired. The bad girls who are full of scraps? You're hired. Witter than a '90s shake? Hired. What? Are you still looking at the stain? Come. You should read this book right now. For America. Expecting something like An Unreal Fast-Paced Tournament and a haste of future science fiction about the dull world of competitive play every week, Kali Ling fights to the death on national television. And even though their weapons and armor are digital, the pain is real. Because it's much more than a game, and even in the real world, it's not all as it seems. Now, she has to face the truth about the tournament. Every bloody murder is passed down to millions. And it never gets easier to win RAGE tournaments, the elite competition of the Virtual Game League, where the world's best gamers compete in a battle without a digital death. She died hundreds of times. And the only way to change the rules is to fight from the inside. Each player is a modern gladiator – a leading life of supreme glory, responsible only for entertaining the masses. VULS hides dark secrets. Chosen to be the first female captain in the history of the RAGE tournament, Callie Ling was on top of the world - while one of her teammates overdosed
